SENIOR'S

Like a beacon from which light is generated, they have guided your path, lest your feet might stumble or falter and you suffer an aftermath.

That light remains here for those who will follow through Lane's Halls of Fame. It will guide them into the future toward the victories which they will claim, as well as you.

May you continue to strive and struggle with unfailing zeal to bring honor to Lane College. And as you venture forth on a journey that will take you far, may the Maker of light cast on you blessings, no matter where you may be.

LIFT EV'RY VOICE AND SING

Lift ev'ry voice and sing, till earth and heaven ring
Ring with the harmonies of Liberty;
Let our rejoicing rise high as the list'ning skies
Let it resound loud as the rolling sea.

Sing a song full of the faith that the dark past has taught us
Sing a song full of the hope that the present has brought us
Facing the rising sun, of our new day begun
Let us march on till victory is won.

Stony the road we trod, bitter the chast'ning rod
Felt in the days when hope unborn had died;
Yet with a steady beat, have not our weary feet,
Come to the place for which our fathers sighed?

We have come over a way that with tears has been watered,
We have come treading our path thro' the blood of the slaughtered,
Out from the gloomy past, till now we stand at last
Where the white gleams of our bright star is cast.

God of our weary years, God of our silent tears,
Thou who hast brought us thus far on the way;
Thou who hast led us into the light,
Keep us forever in the path, we pray.

Lest our feet stray from the places, our God, where we met Thee,
Lest our hearts drunk with the wine of the world, we forget Thee;
Shadowed beneath Thy hand may we forever stand,
True to our God, true to our Native Land.

--James Weldon Johnson
In this Bicentennial Year, it is only proper that the Lanite Staff pause to pay tribute to Black Americans who are yesterday’s, today’s, and tomorrow’s heroes. Yes, Blacks should celebrate the Bicentennial, for Black history is beautiful as we have known it, as we know it, and as we can know it.

The corridors of time have allowed us to know such great people as Crispus Attucks, Sojourner Truth, Frederick Douglass, Marcus Garvey, Malcolm X, Martin Luther King, Jr., Jesse Jackson, Angela Davis, Shirley Chisholm, and countless other beautiful Black children who gave us roots and helped us blossom into what we are today. We are proud today of these Black Americans, for they, too, in spite of what the history books and White America project, have made America great.

Whereas our ancestors (not by choice) were the first successful cultivators of the fields of America, we, their descendants, feel ourselves entitled to participate in the blessings of her abundant soil which their blood enriched. And any measure, or system of measures, that have a tendency to banish us, would not only be cruel but in direct violation of those principles which have been and are the boast of this country.

Our African-American history tells us that there is another history just as great as other histories, and that it is impossible to create American history without recognizing this African-American history.

"African-American history is a history of slavery, segregation, blood, cotton, reaches, and rats. But it is also a story of human faith, human strength, and human weakness, which is to say that it is a story relevant to the lives of all men."

Ralph Ellison put it very well, saying: "Any people who could endure all that brutalization and keep together, who could undergo such dismembrment and reconstitute itself, and endure until it could take the initiative in achieving its own freedom is obviously more than the sum of its brutalization."

Blacks have made tremendous contributions to American History—in the field of religion, education, the arts, education, etc.—and it is for this reason that we devote a section of our book to past, present, and future heroes. Only a few Black contributors are pictured on the following pages, but we pay tribute to all!

WE HAVE COME A LONG WAY; WE HAVE OVERCOME; AND WE CAN BE EVEN GREATER IN MULTITUDES!

LET US UNITE FOR PROGRESS!!!!!
