Five representatives of the Black Executive Exchange Program, better known as BEEP, were on Lane College's campus October 1-3.

BEEP is an affiliate of the National Urban League, Inc. It was developed twenty years ago to address the concerns of black colleges and universities to better prepare students for industry-related careers.

The BEEP visiting professors were: Renee Dujain, Executive Director of BEEP; National Urban League, Inc.; Clarence D. Carrington, Amoco Production Company; Stanley W. Tutman, Amoco Corporation; John T. Swindell, Chesbrough; Pond's, Inc.; Geoff Gayle, IDS American Express.

Each gave an autobiographical presentation before a class. The BEEPERS also conducted workshops on interviewing skills, resume writing and the job search.

LANE COLLEGE - JACKSON, TN
STUDENT LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

The Student Leadership Conference that was held on September 10, 1969 is evident to be successful from the looks of these pictures.

This conference is set aside at the beginning of each academic school year to allow representatives from every organization on campus to voice their opinions on what the school agendas and events are, and the dates they will be on. This conference has cut back on confusion and misunderstandings in the past, and hopefully will eliminate problems of the future.

Dean, Thomas, Mrs. Morrison, and Ms. Simmons talk and listen to each other for ideas and constructive advice.

Kajal, Tamara, James, Eric, Anshire, Shahe, and Angela express the type of day they have had with a map of smiles and serious tables.

Grace Miller, Angela Spencer, and others are paying close attention to what is being said.

Dean Thomas states his point of view.

Lori, John, Charles, and Sheronda posed to take this picture without any hesitation.
Mrs. Marshall tells someone to hurry up before she changes her mind.

Kim says, "Smile. Blood Donors are happier!"

John gives blood like a real man.

Tara assures Sh wounded that everything will be alright.

Why all the paper work? Mrs. Butler is serious about giving blood for a worthy cause.

MOVING TO THE MUSIC

Lakira is ready for the summer heat.

To key the beat, Paul is definitely musically inclined.

Dene struts to the music.

CROWD TEASERS

Fashion Shows at Lane bring about excitement and intrigue. As the models prepare backstage, the crowd is ready to begin cheering. As suspense builds, the models finally arrive on the scene. With sophistication and expertise, our Lane College models capture the audience. Fashion Shows are definitely worth the wait.

Franco and Tara move the crowd.

Barbara is an attention-getter.

Melissa is a step beyond the rest.

Melissa is pizzazz in motion.
Mr. Delta Pageant 1990

Presenting Mr. Delta for 1990 Gregory McConnell showed off his intelligence as well as his physique. As the winner he was presented with a trophy, a gift certificate, a "red" robe, a crown and balloons.

Mrs. Goodway looked carefully at the criteria before judging.

"Why did the chicken cross the road? To get to the other side!" A budding star — Mr. Long provide entertainment for the audience.

George maintained a serious approach through the pageant. His tufts were awesome.

Chaurcey received honorable mention as he assisted the Dallas.

Mr. Delta's talent was "scandalous". He definitely had the whip-appeal.

George's rendition of an African native was excellent.

Mrs. Kimikis and Mr. Long only gave out deserved points.

This dynamic group had the audience begging for more.

Aretha Miligan presented Mr. Long an award for her superior advisory skills.
THE FIRST ANNUAL FRENCH WORKSHOP

The French Culture Has Offered Much To the American Society. Let's Take A Look.

Without a doubt, speaking a foreign language can be very lucrative, but learning the culture can be rewarding.

The Division of Liberal Studies at Lane College hosted a French Workshop (L'Atelier de français) on March 5, 1980 which was sponsored by the Jackson Arts Council of Tennessee.

The two artists were Madame Lillian Labe and Monsieur Don Hinkley. Performing together since 1974, Lillian and Don have toured extensively in the United States, Europe and Canada. Natives of Maine, the pair has been through all of the trials and tribulations of carving out a musical career.

Monsieur Hinkley is a subtly profi cient guitarist makes his statement with simplicity, accompanied by a feel for the dynamics and tonal qualities of the instrument. Madame Labe's voice is an elegant soprano, clean and natural, no trills or distracting vibrato. She's also got a keen sense of rhythm, illustrated both in her guitar and clapping accompaniments.

The two artists performed French-Canadian Folk Songs and lectured about the contrast of the French spoken in Canada, France, New Orleans, and Maine.

Hinkley and Labe know their (Piglatte) are examples of acoustic performers who have survived the onslaught of techno-pop and are ready for the resurgence of folk music.

To conclude the French Workshop displays were set-up to influence and interest the people about the importance of learning a foreign language.

One of the guest performers of the day renders a selection on his guitar.

Two of Lane's students listen attentively while another one of the guests explains about the different products of the French culture.

One of the students poses for the camera while test tasting a bit of the French culture.
On Sunday, March 4 at 4:00 p.m. at St. Paul C.M.E. Church, the Lane College family observed their 81st Founder’s Day. The speaker for the occasion was Dr. Stafford L. Thompson, Vice Chancellor at the University of Alabama Community College. He is a 1967 graduate of Lane College.

MAGGIE RENÉ GEORGE
SOPRANO

On Sunday, April 25th, at 3:00 Maggie Rene George presented her senior voice recital. George is a native of Caruthersville, Missouri. George maintained a 3.5 accumulative G.P.A. during her tenure at Lane College and received voice training for three years from Dr. William B. Garcia, Music Instructor and Director of the Lane College Concert Choir.
RISING STAR ENSEMBLE

Rising Star actresses are hard at work learning their lines. Melissa Bailey is so dedicated that she came to rehearsal with curlers in her hair or was she just lacy?

LONG TIME SINCE YESTERDAY

October 26th and 27th P.J. Gibson's "Long Time Since Yesterday" was performed by young but gifted Rising Star Ensemble. The play starred Tolya Chambers, Pamela Confer, Melissa Bailey, Karen Washington, Barbara Jones, Andre Fox and Rising Star veterans Grace Miller and Camilla Parks.

Edmon Thomas should be commended for his excellent selection of these tremendously gifted and talented actresses. Each actresses portrayed her role as if it were own life being performed on stage.

The played centers around five women who after years distance and time reunite after the suicide of the main character. While the focus is center on the main character's reason for committing such an act, it is important to understand the connection of lesbianism, jealousy, rape, alcoholism, death and friendship to this tragedy.

While Confer (young Laverne) and Parks (young Janet) opened the play on a giggle filled portrait of two young girls discovering their sexuality. The high intense emotions of the play are not resolved until the final confrontation between Jones (Pandi) and Chambers (older Laverne).

"FRUIT FOR THE MIND"

The Meeting is a one-act play by Jeff Sternson about a fictitious confrontation between Malcolm X and Dr. Martin Luther, Jr. "Never mistake non-violence for non-action." This was one of the lines that was said by Dr. King, portrayed by John Edwards. Jeff Butler gave a dynamic performance of Malcolm X, Malcolm's bodyguard was forcefully portrayed by Kenneth J. Brown.

The play kept your interest at the beginning with only two actors on stage, and made you think about your beliefs on racism. It was interesting to see two great men duel about their own beliefs on racism.

"The purpose of the play was to entertain, educate and not to take sides. To show the audience that both men were fighting for the same goal, freedom for African Americans," said Edmon S. Thomas, director of the play.

Both men were fighting for peace and equality, but wanted it by different means. An eye for an eye was not an alternative for King, but it was for Malcolm.

The interaction between Butler and Edwards was impressive. The dialogue was near perfect considering that both had a large amount of lines to remember. "Malcolm was a good speaker and playing him made me feel good," said Butler.

"It was an honor to play this role, a lot was expected of me," said Edwards.

The play received some laughter due to some mixed humor, like the scenes where the two men arm wrestle, three times. Malcolm X winning the first match, King winning the second, and symbolic draw on the third.

The play succeeded in giving us fruit for the mind.

A DREAM

there is a man I know
from the shadow of snow
his shoes to darkness
where ever he goes
he was sent here as a purpose I know to let me and your freedom know
he did so much and
ask so little to take away the sorrow and
the bitter
he spoke from his heart
and cried from his soul
just to carry on the freedom road
maybe I was too young to understand why this man
went out to touch others hand
he went through battles and struggles with the wrong so that march can carry on perhaps we all should thank him one day for letting us march in the right way

DR. KING, DR. KING thank you for the DREAM
the DREAM that let our FREEDOM RING!
