RISDE production of "Trespasses" by Edmon S. Thomas Speech and Drama Professor, received wide acclaim. It is a two-act play about a family torn apart by alcoholism, abuse, and a son's determination to get revenge on his father.

Arie Bolden, a neophyte actor gave an excellent performance as James, the father, and another neophyte, Lukita Sims captivated the audience with her performance of Nikki, Donette's girlfriend. David Willis, who played Donette, the lead character in the play had the audience feeling his torment. Karen Washington, who played Mary, Donette's mother, moved the audience to tears with her performance. Veteran RISDE actors Reggie Carr and Kimberly Allen gave strong performance as Donette's best friends, Dany and Sharron. Carr's performance added a much needed dimension to the play.
